Community Newsletter

Welcome to the regular community newsletter to keep you informed about Melbourne Airport operations and projects, runway plans, opportunities at the airport and other related news. We welcome your feedback about what is important to you.

Record summer international passenger numbers

In December, Melbourne Airport became the first Australian capital city airport to surpass pre-pandemic levels of the number of seats available for international flights. A total of 1.31 million international seats were available across the month, compared to 1.29 million seats in December 2019.

This additional capacity was reflected in new record international passenger figures across the summer holiday period, with numbers up 7% on pre-pandemic levels.

This extra capacity is providing travellers with more choice while helping to put downward pressure on air fares. It also gives Victorian exporters of high-value, time-critical goods improved access to international markets, with 85% of all international freight travelling in the cargo hold of passenger aircraft.

Better buses needed

Melbourne Airport is calling on Public Transport Victoria to invest in improvements to the airport's public bus links, to provide passengers and airport workers with better connections to nearby towns and suburbs. With the exception of the 901 Smart Bus, existing bus services start too late, finish too early, and do not run often enough. Melbourne Airport is asking PTV to consider extending the 901 Smart Bus from the airport to Sunbury, and the 902 Smart Bus from Airport West to Melbourne Airport. Melbourne Airport is also calling for a bus connection to Brimbank to give local passengers a public transport option and ensure residents have access to the hundreds of jobs available on the airport precinct.

Supporting a future-proof airport rail link

Melbourne Airport welcomes confirmation of the federal government's commitment to build the long-awaited airport rail link. Melbourne Airport supports the rail link because it will provide passengers with more choice and improved access from across Melbourne and particularly the growing western suburbs.

Melbourne Airport continues to advocate for an underground station to ensure future-proofing of the rail line and terminal precinct. If the rail line is ever to be extended beyond the airport, it must be built below ground, as building over the top of the runways is impossible.

The government's decision to pause the project last year allowed Melbourne Airport to develop an underground station concept that would be cost-competitive with the state's elevated option.

We look forward to working with the state government to develop this proposal to ensure investment in infrastructure that supports Victorians for decades to come.

Melbourne Airport's Third Runway Major Development Plan

Melbourne Airport reviewed community feedback on its third runway proposal and submitted a draft Major Development Plan to the Federal Government for approval in February 2023. Consistent with the current Master Plan, the airport plans to build a new 3,000-metre-long runway 1.3 kilometres to the west and parallel to the existing north-south runway. The new runway is essential to ensure Melbourne Airport has sufficient capacity to service Victoria's growth.

The new runway will require new flight paths, which will change the way aircraft fly around Melbourne. Proposed operating modes can be viewed in the interactive flight path and noise tool at www.melbourneairport.com.au/runway

Naarm Way now open

Travellers using the Tullamarine Freeway now have a direct link to the Terminal 4 car park and public pick-up zones, following the opening of Stage 1 of Melbourne Airport's elevated roads project. Known as Naarm Way, the new road provides an intersection-free journey from the freeway to the ground transport hub. Melbourne Airport will soon start construction of Stage 2, which will connect the new road to the Terminal 123 carpark and facilitate an expanded pick-up and drop-off zone.

Victoria University partnership taking-off

Jobs and student internships together with significant research projects are at the heart of Melbourne Airport's partnership with Victoria University.

In the first ever university partnership for the airport, students from the west will have the chance to contribute to one of the biggest economic drivers in the state.

The three-year Memorandum of Understanding also aims to enrich the airport visitor experience through a First Nations Education framework, as well as exploring research and STEM programs at the new Tech school development proposed for Brimbank.

A world first for airports

Melbourne Airport has introduced an organics waste stream that uses insects to consume and process passenger food — a first for any airport in the world!

More than 40 of the airport's restaurants, cafes and lounges are using the system, to reduce the amount of waste going to landfill.

Insects consume travellers' food waste over a 12-day feeding cycle to produce nutrient-rich frass and protein used as animals and aquaculture feeds, and soil fertiliser. On average, more than 2,000 kilograms of terminal food scraps and coffee grinds go to the processing unit each week.

ENGLISH

Melbourne Airport publishes a regular newsletter to keep you informed of our operations and projects, runway plans and other related news. The airport is an important hub for Australia's international and domestic networks and is currently seeking federal government approval to build a new north-south runway, which will result in changes to flight paths around the city. It is important that we keep you up to date with what is happening and that we continue to hear what is important to you. The newsletters have been translated into a variety of languages.
